

New Winter 2016 Course: LDA 198
132 Hunt Hall, Wednesdays 5-7pm, 2-4 units

Pop-Up Public / StoryBus

People powered, community engaged journalism

Collaborate with Capital Public Radio to design our mobile storytelling unit!

- Get hands-on prototyping experience
- Explore how to involve people in telling stories about the places they live
- Be part of an interdisciplinary creative team

Capital Public Radio, the NPR affiliate serving the Northern California and western Nevada, is developing a mobile StoryBus that travels to neighborhoods throughout our region. Pop-Up Public partners with neighborhood organizations to create media about their lives and worlds. The process informs CapRadio's journalism, brings diverse voices to the airwaves, and catalyzes community development.

In this group study you'll help design Pop-Up Public's community storytelling process, StoryBus prototype, and promotional materials.

Professor David de la Peña with documentary artist jesikah maria ross